

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A semiconductor package includes a semiconductor substrate having a device region on one surface thereof, and a connecting pad electrically connected to the device region. A support substrate is formed on a side of one surface of the semiconductor substrate. An external electrode formed on a side of the other surface of the semiconductor substrate. A connecting wire is partially extended outside the semiconductor substrate for electrically connecting the connecting pad and external electrode.